

North American (First Nations) Women Are the Largest Indigenous Group in Federal Prisons

The graph presents First Nations women as one group, but Indigenous women are not a single population with one single voice. Instead, they are members of distinct nations with different histories, cultures, knowledge, and social experiences.

